

Commercial Litigation

At Gfeller Laurie LLP, we have the resources to pursue or defend our clients' most complex business disputes and the flexibility to serve the diverse needs of local and national clients alike.

Our attorneys have significant experience representing business entities and individuals in complex business disputes across a wide range of industries, particularly financial services, manufacturing, and insurance. We have represented clients in commercial litigation brought in state and federal courts, before arbitration panels, and at mediation, involving a wide range of contract, warranty, business tort, and fraud claims. For example, our attorneys have defended clients in partnership breakups, international vendor performance contract disputes, and large consumer redress disputes that include claims alleging unfair and deceptive trade practices.

Consistent with our focus on risk management, our lawyers also regularly counsel clients on the avoidance of claims before they mature and with respect to the resolution of claims that, while matured, have not yet been made the subject of an action.

Similarly, while we are litigators by nature and trade, we understand that not all matters and situations faced by our commercial clients are suitable for litigation due to various factors which may arise at any point from the time of engagement throughout the course of our representation of the client. In furtherance of this understanding, we have expansive experience with negotiating and drafting lien instruments, repayment arrangements, and structured settlement agreements to secure the clients' desired results without the monetary and temporal expense of litigation.

In keeping with our founding focus, we provide high quality representation at costs that are economical to our commercial clients. We treat all matters with the same level of attention regardless of size or scope.
